

Material Science Research Using Theoretical and Computational Physics

Dr. Hye-Young Kim, Southeastern Louisiana University

For some years, I have performed a series of theoretical and computational studies on various materials: the self-assembly of small biomolecules and the physical adsorption of fluids in and out of nanopores and on graphene. In the seminar, I will present some highlights of the result.